Nando's Allergen Information Guide

Updated 15th September 2026

If you are dining in one of our restaurants and you have a food allergy, please speak to our staff when ordering. Please read our definitions for Y, T & Blank Space, as well as additional information on allergens.

Definitions:

- Y - does contain the allergen listed for this product
- T - may contain traces of the allergen in the product as specified by our supplier or due to cross contamination in our restaurants.
- Blank Space - allergens (or allergen traces) were not reported based on the information from our ingredient suppliers and assessment of our restaurant operations.

We are unable to guarantee that any products sold are free from allergens. There is always a risk that there may still be traces of allergens in products or ingredients, due to potential cross contamination during processing, storage, preparation in our restaurants or during the external manufacturing processes. Be aware that we serve allergen containing products in our restaurants such as gluten-containing breads, milk containing foods like cheeses. Individual food items may also come into contact with one another during service or delivery which is not reflected in our Allergen Guide.
